Halloween Party At Kindergarten

The children of the Liberty Baptist Church Kindergarten decorated their room with pumpkins, black cats, witches, ghosts and goblins made by each of them, then dressed in their favorite costume for Halloween for a spooky Halloween Party. Mrs. J. Franklin Vaughan, teacher, served them a goblin feast of their favorite snacks and they had just finished a goblin parade before posing for the photographer.

Pictured on row one, from left to right, are Anne Caldwell, Kinekle Robinson, Cheryl Matthews, Jeffery O'Brien and Custis Pearson. Second row, from left to right, are Sally Coleman, Leslie Ranson, Calvin Tutwiler, Steven Drinkard, Sonny Caldwell, J. C. Rogers, Suzette Ranson, Paul Holliday, and Sherry Ferguson. On the back row, are, from left to right, R. L. Waldo, Cathryn Ballowe, Rodney Johnson, Cynthia Clark and Regina McCormick.

During Fire Prevention Week, they visited the fire station and climbed all over the big engine and even blew the siren. Firemen Johnson and Carter gave them a tour of the building and explained to them ways to help prevent fires. They rode on the big red candy apple Liberty bus to and from their distination. The children in Liberty Kindergarten have also met and enjoyed "Ricky", the puppet son of Rev. Richard Brackin. Their days are filled with hours of work and play and learning and laughing and happy times for this is how a five year old learns and grows.

Primary Students Conduct Interview

A fundamental purpose of education is to prepare the young to live a productive and rewarding life. It is important that an appreciation for the dignity of work be cultivated in all students. Career education begins in early childhood and it provides an awareness of the world of work as well as direct experience to motivate and captivate the learner's interest. Students are being prepared for a successful life by increasing their options for occupational choices. Usually through grade 6, the child explores the world of work through a wide spectrum of occupational "clusters", such as transportation, health, or safety.

On federal, state, and local levels emphasis is being put on career education and the movement is due to grow. The Standards of Quality as set up by the State Department of Education for implementation in all Virginia schools.

Other students in the Appomattox Primary School also have conducted interviews. Carrol Kanipe and Ned Jennings interviewed personnel at the State Highway Shop; Joe Hamlette and Richard Nash interviewed personnel at Lawson Ford; Karen Johnson and Sharon Eggleston interviewed Floyd Eggleston at the Fidelity National Bank; Ralph Totty interviewed the Jailor; Allen Smith conducted an interview with J. A. Smith, Extension Agent, at the County Extension Office; and Bridget Franklin interviewed an operator in a local beauty shop. The Rev. Richard C. Brackin came to the school and was interviewed in the classroom. Brackin, and his employer both an employee but office, was interviewed classroom by the

Mrs. Lueila Coleman, teacher of fourth year students at Appomattox Primary School, has planned activities for the group which includes interviews with persons in varied occupations. Students made their choices and the tape recorders which they operated the tape recorders which they operated Community people are, also, being invited into the room.

MRS. COLEMAN'S 4-H CLUB

The second meeting of the Pamplin 7th grade 4-H club was called to order by the president Barry Doss. We pledged the flags and then we played a game led by the recreation leaders, Ronnie Richardson and Sarah Hamlin. The secretary, Rose Glenn read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mr. Sweet checked the safety posters, the places we put our hot dots, and the last year's project records. The old business was then finished. Barry Doss asked if there was any new business. We talked about public speaking and demonstrations.

Then the meeting was turned over to the vice-president, Connie Murray who turned the meeting over to Mr. Sweet. Then we chose the projects for the year. Then Mrs. Johnson passed out pet survey cards. Then Mr. Sweet passed out some of the project books. Then the meeting was adjourned by president Barry Doss.

bottomless pit and that sooner or later there will be a reckoning day when some programs will have to be sharply reduced or eliminated altogether if we are to push new priority measures," he said.

Abbitt, who has served nearly 25 years and is dean of the Virginia Congressional delegation, made a number of "observations" on needed governmental reforms and legislation to deal with existing problems on a wide front. Among these were:

He is concerned about the growing role of the Executive Branch as compared to the Legislative Branch -- "I feel that Congress should look with disfavor upon relinquishing its responsibility to the Executive Branch, irrespective of which party is involved".

He feels Congress should schedule legislation so that last-minute rushes to adjourn might be avoided -- "It is ridiculous that a business as large as the Federal government -- spending more than $250,000,000,000 annually should operate in as much uncertainty, as is now the case".

He hopes the next Congress will approve a Constitutional amendment he sponsored to require reconfirmation of Federal judges every 10 years with mandatory retirement at age 70.

He hopes that Congress "will seize the initiative and take affirmative action to assure our people that justice in America will not be relegated by kowtowing to lawless elements, partronizing minority pressure groups and headline-seeking attorneys who seek to reduce our legal system to a mirage of technicalities."

He hopes that others will carry on the fight he has waged against permissive law enforcement, forced busing of students in the public schools, acquiescence in Supreme Court decisions on obscenity and pornography and continued deficit spending.

SENATOR SPONG:

A RESPONSIBLE VOICE FOR ALL VIRGINIANS

When Virginians go to the polls on November 7, they will select a United States Senator to represent them. We think you should carefully consider what each candidate will mean to you.

Spong's approach to his job as Senator has been to determine what he should be doing to represent the interest of the people of Virginia, and then do it.

AGRICULTURE: Spong fought vigorously for the passage of the Agriculture Appropriations Bill (1971-72). This bill provided funds for tobacco, peanut and dairy price supports, water and soil conservation programs (REAP), agricultural research, and the extension service. Scott, however, being insensitive to the needs of Virginia farmers, opposed these important agricultural programs.

DEFENSE: Spong voted against the McGovern amendment providing for a $4 billion across-the-board cut in defense. Furthermore, Spong led the fight for the carrier CVAN-70, and is a strong advocate of the Trident nuclear submarine program.

ECONOMY: Spong has been leading Congressional figure in the fight against inflation and unemployment. His stands for fiscal responsibility were recognized by the National Associated Businessmen, Inc., which made him the only Senate Democrate to be awarded the 1972 "Watchdog of the Treasury Award."

EDUCATION: Spong has been a champion for public education beginning with his days in Virginia General Assembly.

DRUGS: Spong has demanded research into the causes, cures and means of preventing drug abuse, and has fought for tough measures to stop illegal drug traffic. Scott on the otherhand, voted against the formation of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, an organization formed to spearhead the war against drug abuse.

SUPREME COURT: Spong voted for Haynsworth and Powell. He voted against Carswell after careful personal investigation of Carswell.

The people of Florida upheld Spong's decision against Carswell as they turned him down, at the polls, for the U. S. Senate.

Senator Spong has worked hard to make decisions that he believes to be in the best interest of Virginians. We believe that the success of Senator Spong this November will be a victory for those who believe that reasoned and responsible government is our best hope.

Senator Spong will appreciate your vote.
